Summary: Steve hurt by Russians

StrangerthingsSteve

"Guys this way!" Yelled Steve as the scoops troop run for their lives while Dustin was screaming for his life. Steve helped them escape, he needed to keep everyone safe so he made sure that everyone was in front of him. "Hurry! Go" yelled Robin as Erica lead the way to a room. The sound of gunshots were so loud as the Russians were closing in on them. They almost make it to the door when all of a sudden Steve feels something painful on his leg but he didn't think much of it, with a small grunt they all went through the door as Steve and robin holds the door as long as possible for Dustin and Erica to escape. "I will never forget you" Screamed Dustin and Steve and Robin just screamed for him to go because they couldn't hold the door much longer. A part of Steve feels relieved that at least Erica and Dustin are somewhat safe and another part of him feels like there is something wrong but he just can't pinpoint what it is. With a shove the door flung open leaving the two teenagers to land on their backs with a thud. The next thing they knew they were tied up and sent to different rooms. "Hey wait no! You can't separate us!" Yelled Robin fighting against the Russian soldiers. Steve tried to yell and fight the Russians but he was starting to feel weak and tired.

While the Russians were trying to interrogate Steve, he could barely hear them as if he was underwater, his head was throbbing and the pain in his leg was starting to get unbearable. He swings his eyes as the next punch lands on his chest. "Who do you work for?!" Asks the Russian general with a certain insanity in his voice. "For the last time! I work at scoops Ahoy!" It wasn't a lie but the Russians think it was, they think that they were spies but that's just ridiculous. So when Steve starts rambling, he doesn't even know what he is saying anymore, he just knows that he needs to get out and get help. What seems to be for hours and hours but was only for a few more minutes until Steve felt nothing but darkness.

The Russians put robin and Steve in a bigger room together, while one Russian guard throws Steve onto the ground, Robin is forcefully lead into the room. "Hey! Stop it! Let us go!" She kept yelling. But when she lead her eyes on Steve she panicked, he looked absolutely awful, he was pale and shaking and unconscious. "Steve! Steve! Can you hear me?!" Said Robin as she crawled next to him. "What did you guys do?!" Then she looked down and saw red... blood. "Wait he's bleeding! He needs help! Please!" Robin was frantic, she knows it but she really doesn't want Steve "the hair" Harrington to die. As the Russians tied them both onto chairs facing away from each other, Robin struggled, desperate to get away, desperate for Steve to be alright. "Steve! Steve please wake up!" The Russians left them so that they can prepare for the real interrogation. "Help! Help!" Screamed Robin and just then a voice that Robin needed to hear finally spoke. "Hey, can you stop yelling?" Slurred Steve.

"Oh my gosh! Steve! Thank goodness! Are you okay?" Stumbled Robin

"Well my ears are ringing, I can't really breathe and my whole body feels like it was hit by a bus and- Arugh!" Steve grunted at the end. "What! What Steve! Are you okay?!" Said Robin

"My leg, my leg hurts like crazy" Steve says as he takes a shuddering breath.

Steve continued to take shaky breaths as if he was drowning and gasping for air. "Steve, Steve! I need you to stay calm, focus on breathing right, in and out" Said Robin as calmly as she could. "We are going to get out of here alright, and you are going to be okay" She stuttered. When almost all Hope was lost, Dustin and Erica suddenly bursts into the room. "Oh my god! Dustin! Get us out! Hurry! Steve needs help!" Screamed Robin

Dustin went to Steve and began to untie the ropes. He looked at what Steve and sees that his face is soaking with sweat but is extremely pale, the only colour on his face was just the black eye that he had. He was heaving for breaths but was also focused on Dustin. "I knew you would come back" Steve heaves out as he slightly smiles at Dustin and they both escape together. With adrenaline by their side, the four of them made their way back to the elevator. They pant for breaths as the elevators go up back to the surface. "Is everyone alright?" Asks Dustin Robin and Erica nods as they hear a grunt of pain and a thud on the floor. "Steve!" All of them shouts. "What happened?!" Yelled Dustin. As Robin starts to tell him what happened, Erica and Dustin starts to examine Steve. Blood. There was blood leaking from his leg and Steve was starting to lose consciousness. "Hey! Hey Dingus! You have to stay awake!" Yelled Robin. Dustin examines his leg and gasps in horror. "What? What is it?" Asks Erica. "H-He was shot! And it looks like there are black veins that were spreading" Says Dustin. The three of them stare at each other in horror. None of them knew what to do and none of them moved until they heard another pained groan from Steve. "Alright, Erica, put pressure on his leg, Robin, whatever you do, keep him awake. I will call for help." Said Dustin as his blank mind starts to restart again.

Dustin quickly snatches the radio and tried to signal Mike. "This is a code red! I repeat! This is a code red! We found a secret Russian base and we were trying to escape but now we are in an elevator in Starcourt mall! And Steve is hurt! He has been shot! We need backup like now!"

"Dustin?!" Says Mike through the radio. "Mike?!" Screams Dustin, a sense of relief floods over Dustin because Mike heard him and is getting help. "Dustin! We are heading to Starcourt mall now! Over and out!" Says Mike.

Dustin looks over to Steve and hopes that he will be alright. When the elevator door opens, the help Steve walk slowly as they meet up with El and the rest of the gang. Dustin flashed his pearly smile as he embraced Mike and El with a hug. Robin lowered a disoriented Steve onto the ground and everyone gathered around. "Steve!" Said Nancy as Johnathan held her hand tighter. Robin began to explain everything that happened, when she finished, Dustin said "look at his leg, it looks like it's spreading". El looked at his leg as she traced her hand over it. The mind flatter she thought, she is not going to let one of her friends get hurt because of her again so she reached out her hand over Steve's leg and used her powers. With a gasp, the bullet that was once in Steve is now on the floor. Everyone flooded with relief, Steve stirs as he opened his eyes he says weakly "thanks El, that feels much better". Dustin chuckles at the sight of his friend finally being okay or until the monster roars.
